HONGRONG, MARCH 31st, 1876.

Though the terms of the agreement between the Great Northern Telegraph Company and the Chinesa Authorities in reference to the Foothew-Amoy telegraph difficulty have not yet been made public, our Foothow contemporary understands that there is a great probability of the line being constructed within twelve months. It is, bowever, questionable how far this "probability" is really satisfactory. If no positive understanding has been arrived at ou this point, the construction of the line may be as distant as | Galle, with dates from the latter port to the master a evidence. ever. The verbal promises of Chinese officials must always be taken with a pinch of salt, as past experience has enlightened us with re- Canning. Neither the station. - Straits Times. railways nor telegraphs have as yet gained the good opinion of the Chinese Authorities, and it is to be feared that their introduction. into the Central Kingdom will be deferred: for many years, owing to the strenuous opposition of the official classes. The memorial from the Governor-General of Folkien, recently published in the Poking Gazette, in which heasks for the disgrace and removal of the Prefer who was appointed to superintend the construction of the telegraph between Foochow and Amoy, rather seems to indi- on the bridge at the time of the accident. The cate that the head and front of the Prefect's offending was in concluding an agreement to take over the line. At least, such a conclusion may readily be drawn by the following sontence :- "At the outset he (the Prefect) acted with a want of discretion which entailed unfortunate consequences, in beedlessly concluding an agreement; and at a filling rapidly, the water reached the engine subsequent period he stirred up a controversy and gave rise to difficulties by circulating talso reports." Now we know of to her assistance. Every attempt was then sage for him. The other day he told him that his ately, be tried, as they were both 6 inches too the "Interport Challenge Foor-oar;" and only one agreement having been made, and that was entered into by the Chinese with the Great Northern Company to construct the line for them. How they then tailed to give the constructing party the nesessary protection from mcb violence, owing to which the Company were compelled at length to abandon the attempt, has been chronicled. The Prefect no doubt most fully deserves degradation, but it is by no means unlikely that be has been chosen as the scapegout for the occasion. In spite of the apparent frankness occasion. overcoming the prejudice which is still so widely felt against Western inventions. We can only hope that the Fohkien officials will not again resort to prevarication and endeavour to shuffle out of their compact, and that the confidence of the Foothow Herald in the permanent adjustment of the difficulty is not altogether misplaced.

A CORRESPONDENT Writes to us upon a sub ject calculated to excite some distrust in the minds of all who have occasion to avail themselves of the use of street chairs. One usually enters these conveyances somewhat reluctantly, and with troublesome misgivings as to the company he may find therein, the self-complacency with which the bearers, in their leisure hours, overlock their clothing, not tending to allay apprehensions of this character. But worse than this, one knows not what contagious disease may be there incurred. Our correspondent says that he saw a lepor being carried in an ordinary street chair. If this be correct, the police ought to be on the alert. The Colony should be kept free of the miserable beings who suffer from this loathsome scourge of the East, but "F. M." says that he has seen "not a few." Certainly his language cannot be considered exaggerated. There are some streets which one cannot pass along without being assailed by numerous mendicants, many of them suffering from diseases which render them most disgusting objects. The police force ought to be strong enough to tope with an evil like this, but they ought also to receive the assistance of civilians They may reasonably complain that "F. M., on seeing a leperbeing carried in a street chair, ought to have called the attention of the police to the fact, or, if there happened to be no policeman near, should have taken the number on the chair, so that the owners might afterwards have been proceeded

Some further particulars of the loss of the O. S. S. Company's steamer Orestes are gleaned from the Cevior papers. One telegram dated Galle, 8th inst. states :- "The steamer Orestes, from Liverpool, for China, struck on the Gintara Rock, on coming into barbour for coals, at about 5 o'clock resterday, afternoon, The ressel sank at 8 o'clock in fourteen fathoms of water. words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects machinery photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in exteno. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming evercises for students of a most instractive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of boly, thereby effecting a vast coonemy of space, achieving a dearness not previously attained and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. THE COMEDIAN'S LAST NIGHT. BY EDMUNDER. STEDNAN. Not yet! No, no, you would not quote. That meanest of the critic's gags I "Twas surely not of me they wrote Those words, too late the vetera lags; Tis not so very late with me; I'm not so old as that, you know Though work and trouble-as you see-(Not years) have brought me somewhat low I failed, you say? No, no, not yet! Or if I did-with such a past? Where is the man would have me quit

Without one triumph at the last? But one night more -a little thing To you - I swear 'tis all I ask! Once work to make the wide house ring-To trend the boards, to wear the make. To move the cold at as of yore, To make their laugh, to make them cry; To be-to be myself once more, And then, if must be, let me die !-The prompter's hell ! I'm here, you see: By leavon, friends, you'll break my heart! Nat Gosling's called; let be, let be-None but myself shall act the part !

Yes, thank you, boy, I'll take your chair. One moment while I catch my breath, D've hear the noise they're making there i Twonid warm a player's heart in death. How say you now? Whate'er they write, We've put the bitter jibe to sharing; I knew, I knew there burned to night Within my veins the olden flame ! Sinnd off a bit, that final round-I'd hear it ere it dies away The last, last time—there's no more sound: So end the player and the play.

The house is cleared. My senses swim; I shall be better, though, anon-One stambles when the lights are dim-"Is growing late; we must be gone. Well, braver luck than mine, old friends A little work and fame are ours While beaven health and fortune lends. And then—the cofflu and the flowers!
